Process Overview

BACKGROUND

Cville Plans Together is an effort to continue and finalize updates to the Comprehensive Plan (the city’s guiding document for land use and development), followed by an update to the city’s zoning ordinance. It includes a detailed Affordable Housing Plan, which describes goals, priorities, and implementation strategies which will be incorporated into the Comprehensive Plan update.

More information about the Consultant Team for Cville Plans Together can be found at cvilleplanstogether.com/about/.

PURPOSE

The goal of the November 2020 community engagement efforts was to share the draft Affordable Housing Plan and draft initial revisions to the Comprehensive Plan. We also wanted to continue building a network and connections in the Charlottesville community and bring people into the process. Due to COVID-19, the city and consultant team were required to continue adapting the process to utilize safe, physically-distanced methods of community engagement.

SUMMARY OF ACTIVITIES

Outreach

To make community members aware of the process and the input opportunity, the city and consultant team utilized many outreach tools.

- A virtual meeting page on the website served as the hub for information about all available materials and upcoming events.
- The team provided frequent updates through social media accounts (Instagram, Facebook, Twitter), email blasts (via existing City lists and a new Cville Plans Together list), press releases, and direct emails and phone calls with community organizations and individuals.
- The consultant team and Peer Engagers distributed flyers in electronic and print form, in English and Spanish. You can download a flyer here: English | Español/Spanish
- Social media advertisements (Facebook and Instagram) were used to further build community awareness.
- The toll-free phone line was updated with new overview information (Spanish/English).

Gathering Input

Input on the draft Affordable Housing Plan and draft initial Comprehensive Plan revisions was gathered in several ways, as described below.

Letters, Emails, and Website Comments

We received approximately 45 letters, emails, or website comment form submissions from approximately 20 individuals and several groups.

Webinars

The consultant team conducted four webinars – two focused on the draft Affordable Housing Plan and two focused on draft Comprehensive Plan revisions (with a summary of May-June engagement findings). In addition to covering materials on these topics, the team also shared information about other ways to participate in the process.

Survey

To gather input on the draft Affordable Housing Plan and draft Comprehensive Plan revisions, a community survey was open from November 2-December 2, and was available in English and Spanish. 274 responses were received, all on the English survey. The survey was distributed electronically via email, press release, social media, posting on the City and project websites, and other methods.

Drop-In “Office Hours”

There were three 1.5 hour Zoom “drop-in” sessions available. During this time, the Consultant Team was available to receive and discuss comments via phone or via Zoom video chat. There was one participant in the drop-in office hours.

Phone Line

There was a toll-free phone line available, with messages in English and Spanish. Though there were several calls made to the toll-free phone line during the comment period, no comments were recorded.

Meetings

There were two meetings at which the Consultant Team discussed the draft Affordable Housing Plan and received additional input. Though these meetings were focused on gathering input from specific groups (Council, Planning Commission, Steering Committee), they were open to the community to join.

- Joint City Council-Planning Commission Work Session (November 10) – Recording here (search for “Joint Session 11/10/20”)
- Cville Plans Together Steering Committee Meeting (November 23) – Recording here

HOW HAVE WE USED AND HOW WILL WE USE INPUT?

The remainder of this document contains a summary of the input received. The city and consultant team have used, and will continue to use, this and previous input to:

- Refine the draft Affordable Housing Plan
- Refine Comprehensive Plan Guiding Principles and topic-specific Vision Statements
- Revise the goals and strategies within the Comprehensive Plan to align with the revised Guiding Principles and Vision Statements
- Revise the Future Land Use Map in the Comprehensive Plan to align with the updated Comprehensive Plan principles and visions and the revised Affordable Housing Plan

Webinars

There were two webinars for the draft Affordable Housing Plan and two for the draft initial revisions to the Comprehensive Plan. For each webinar, the team shared a presentation with an overview of the draft Affordable Housing Plan. Input was gathered via polls and Q&A throughout the presentation. Poll results are shown below, combined for both events.

Summary of Comments and Questions about the Draft Affordable Housing Plan

Questions and comments from both webinars are summarized here by topic; all comments, questions, and responses can be found in Appendix A.

- Funding
 - How did the consultant team arrive at the $10M number for funding?
 - What are the tax implications of the proposed $10M in annual funding? What would be the fiscal impact on the city?
 - Consider funding for nonprofits that can leverage public funding with private fundraising and volunteerism.
- Governance
 - Housing Advisory Committee (HAC) is laden with conflicts of interest; it should be dissolved and replaced with a new non-partisan 3-5 group.
 - Three companies who received a great deal of funding from the City have a great deal of influence upon the HAC.

- Land Use
 - Focus more on land use and less on funding.
 - Please define “soft density”. How is the consultant team proposing to use it?
 - Where would the multifamily go; which zoning districts?
 - When will a draft land-use plan map be provided that considers the implementation of some of these housing tools?
 - Doesn’t housing cost depend on the amount and type of supply?
 - Wouldn’t a greater supply of soft density units provide more options to residents than LIHTC developments?
 - Wouldn’t low-income family/individuals in predominantly BIPOC [Black, Indigenous and People of Color] neighborhoods benefit from soft density that could create income?
 - Are there recommendations to help prevent more density from driving displacement and gentrification, especially in already lower-income neighborhoods?
 - Do potential impacts include a look at unintended consequences (such as demolition in some more affordable neighborhoods in order to build larger buildings)?
 - Couldn’t people demolish existing houses to build a duplex/triplex/quadruplex for rentals? What would ensure that these include affordable units? Or are you hoping that the additional supply would simply reduce the rate of rental increases?
 - If the land use strategies presented could have negative consequences on our most vulnerable people and neighborhoods, then why are they being considered?
 - There are contradictory elements in the plan. Property tax relief for low-income residents sounds great but I thought the strategy was to avoid strategies, like up zoning, that would threaten these people.
 - Do you have any recommendations on avoiding “back door” gentrification whereby projects and or developments raise the tax burden on generational type homes?
 - Can the consultants make an educated guess as to how many affordable units could be achieved with these land use recommendations? The impact to historic neighborhoods is irreversible. Many of our more vulnerable historic neighborhoods, though nationally recognized, are not protected from demolitions at the local level.
 - Are you really recommending replacing single family neighborhoods with apartment-filled neighborhoods?
 - Why isn't the reclaiming and repurposing of the city's under-utilized industrial and car-dominated landscapes, particularly along its corridors that have been slated for growth since the 2000 Torti Gallas corridor study and every Comprehensive Plan update since (2001, 2007, 2013) in the form of small area plans, considered an affordable housing strategy? You can't expand the supply of affordable housing needed just by adding missing middle housing into single-family housing zones.

- Subsidy
 - Do you include long-term real estate tax abatement programs to promote affordable housing development?
 - I'm disabled and I was standing in the line for years for a tenant voucher. My pension is $1,199, and my rent is $1,140. Is this considered as an emergency situation as emergency help toward rent?
 - I applied through the social services housing for a Section 8 voucher. I've been there for quite a few years. They said it's a lottery-based system – they're not going by the line, they're going by the random number and then they select the person. Is that true? If that's true, is it fair? Some people wait for years.
- Tenants' Rights
 - What tenant rights could Charlottesville have outside of public housing?
 - On the state level, there is no authority for tenant rights and landlord tenant law written in favor of landlords. How can you propose tenant rights (outside of public housing) without changing state law?
 - Please contact Chip (John) Dicks, the legislative liaison to the Virginia legislature regarding enabling legislation in the context of Virginia's Landlord Tenant Act.
- General/Other
 - Want to see recommendations related to advocating for state/federal policy changes.
 - A regional approach to income building is especially important, or else low-income folks from throughout the region will continue to need subsidized housing in the city.
 - If the private sector puts land into a public-private partnership, investor and city investment could produce multiple types and forms of affordable and mixed income housing. Is the intellectual infrastructure for PPP in place in Charlottesville?
 - Are there any thoughts about "second chance" housing for folks coming home from serving their time in prison? It's difficult for folks with felonies to find housing.
 - Do you address homeless housing?
 - Does your report envision an optimal population or suggest that the City should provide housing for anyone who wishes to live there in whatever type of housing he wants at the price he can afford?
 - How do you consider transportation in supporting affordable housing and making sure that people in affordable housing have access jobs, grocery stores and etc.?
 - Who are you all and how was this group established? Are you all Anglo American?
 - How did you determine the three initiatives? Research? City directive? Community input? Specifically, how did you determine the zoning initiative prior to the zoning phase of the studies?
 - Are you going to consult with UVA at all about creating more affordable housing options in the Charlottesville community? I know that off campus student housing can affect the market by increasing prices and primarily marketing to typically affluent students, thus taking more affordable options away from permanent members of the community.

- Do you define 'gentrification' with having racial connotations?
- The same author who did the Housing Needs Assessment (i.e., the Form Based Code Institute and Partners for Economic Solutions) also studied and recommended a synthetic tax increment finance district (TIF) as a way to target a % of the real estate tax revenue from private redevelopment into the Charlottesville affordable housing fund automatically and annually. This strategy was applied to four build out scenarios on the Ix property within the Strategic Investment Area and it generated enough revenue to fund 99 rental vouchers for very low-income households. Was this explored, and if not, why? If it was, then why wasn't a synthetic TIF included in this set of tools?

Summary of Comments and Questions about the Draft Initial Revisions to the Comprehensive Plan

Questions and comments from both webinars are summarized here by topic; all comments, questions, and responses can be found in Appendix A.

- Land Use, Urban Design, and Historic Preservation
 - What does human-scale mean? What things are not human scale?
 - The term “human scale” is often misused to argue against much needed efficient land use in urban areas.
 - Please explain how you balance “human scale” with increased density and increase height in downtown areas. It can be read minimizing building height & density.
 - Is greater density a fundamental requirement for affordable housing, and if so, can higher density and appropriate urban form (i.e., scale) be achieved simultaneously?
 - Are neighborhoods able to vote on proposed zoning changes for their region?
 - Isn't the best place to increase density the low-density zones?
 - The current draft is silent on the topic of reclaiming, repairing, and reimagining areas in the city (and county) now dominated by auto-centric and aging industrial sites via neighborhood-focused and people-driven small area plans (aka urban development areas required by the state's Smart Scale funding.) Such sites are often the results of urban renewal from 60 years ago that destroyed Black neighborhoods and walkable, block and street networks. Such an approach is a principle of Equitable Smart Growth. Should this be a statement of principle, a goal, or a strategy?
 - How does this proposal clearly and explicitly address the patterns of segregation that was reinforced through Jim Crow housing patterns and model employing concentrations of density of incomes?
 - Can you explain what “infill” means?
- Environmental Stewardship & Sustainability
 - When talking about climate, we need to be able to respond to drastically changing conditions (including emergencies).
 - With climate change, I think you should focus on a goal for 2030, not 2050.
- Community Engagement & Collaboration
 - In the community engagement section, is there anything like programs for educating regular about how cities are made and how to be more involved? I have seen "Planning College" and the like in other places.
 - Can you explain a little bit the efforts made to reach out to those in public housing?
 - Have you met directly with any neighborhood associations?
 - Who are your peer engagers, or where can I find their names? Are the peer engagers being paid?
- Housing

- Housing costs are increasing for everyone at all price points. Increasing tax valuations make both, rental and owner-occupied housing more expensive. How will that be addressed?
- Economic Prosperity & Opportunity
 - Shouldn't there be a guiding principle that recognizes the interests and needs of businesses in order to ensure economic vitality, prosperity, and opportunity?
- Community Facilities & Services
 - Is there data to show the emergency response time for certain areas?
- Implementation
 - Will there be an implementation chapter, with performance measures?
 - Will there be a future "equitable and sustainable development" map that identifies the areas that need more grassroots, fine grained planning?
- General/Other
 - What will happen to the four small area plans already completed?
 - Is there a glossary page(s) that defines all the terms: e.g., human scale, equitable, well utilized, density, etc.
 - Are any of you on the consulting team Charlottesville residents?
 - A majority of the steering committee members are UVA associated. Have you analyzed that membership impact/influence?
